1 General

1.1 What authorities or agencies investigate and enforce the laws governing vertical agreements and dominant firm conduct?

In Greece, the Hellenic Competition Commission (“HCC”) is the competent authority to investigate and enforce the laws governing vertical agreements and dominant undertakings. Namely, the HCC is entrusted to enforce Law 3959/2011 (“Law”) on the protection of free competition, which is the core competition law in Greece, as well as articles 101 and 102 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union (“TFEU”) where applicable. The HCC is an independent authority with administrative and economic autonomy, supervised by the Minister of Finance, Competitiveness and Shipping. It consists of eight (8) regular members acting under the following capacities: President; vice-President; four (4) rapporteurs; and two (2) members (and their alternates). In addition, the Hellenic Telecommunications and Post Commission, which is also an independent administrative authority, acts as a competition authority in the electronic communications market and postal services market.

1.2 What investigative powers do the responsible competition authorities have?

Articles 38–41 of the Law regulate the HCC’s investigative powers. Article 38 of the Law provides that the HCC may send requests for information to undertakings, associations of undertakings, individuals, legal entities, public or other entities. Addressees of such requests are obliged to provide the HCC with prompt, full and accurate information.

In addition, article 39 stipulates that the personnel of the HCC’s General Directorate for Competition, exercising the powers of a tax auditor, may conduct dawn raids at the premises of an undertaking and, more specifically: (i) inspect its books, data, documents, correspondence of its employees and receive copies; (ii) seize books, documents as well as electronic means of storage and data transfer; (iii) monitor and collect information and data from mobile terminals, portable devices as well as servers in cooperation with the competent authorities; (iv) conduct inspections at its offices and other places, as well as its means of transport; (v) seize any professional place, books or documents during the inspection period; (vi) conduct searches at the residences of businessmen, directors, etc., if there are reasonable grounds to suspect that such persons keep books or other documents connected to the undertaking; and (vii) receive sworn or unsworn statements. Article 40 entitles the HCC to conduct sector enquiries in cases where the configuration of prices or other circumstances cause suspicions that competition has been distorted. Finally, it should be noted that in accordance with article 41 of the Law, the personnel of the HCC’s General Directorate for Competition have a duty of confidentiality with regard to all the information it receives under its investigative powers.

1.3 Describe the steps in the process from the opening of an investigation to its resolution.

The Law, in conjunction with the HCC’s Rules of Management and Procedure, lays down the process from the opening of an investigation to its resolution.

In particular, the HCC opens an investigation either at its own initiative or following a complaint submitted by a third party, or following a request submitted by the competent Minister. The President introduces before the HCC cases which fulfil the criteria set out by the HCC’s points system, which is aimed at prioritising its cases. Such system is based on objective criteria and is intended only for internal use as a management tool for investigation of pending cases by the HCC’s Directorate General for Competition.

The introduction by the President of each case before the HCC presupposes the issue of a Statement of Objection (“SO”). In that regard, the case is assigned by lot to one (1) of the HCC’s four (4) rapporteurs in order to draft the SO. Following such assignment, the rapporteur, assisted by the personnel of the HCC’s General Directorate for Competition, drafts the SO within a deadline of one hundred and twenty (120) days, which may be extended by up to sixty (60) days.

The President designates for each case the time and place of the hearing and convenes the HCC to sit either in chambers or in plenum if the case is of major importance. The secretary convenes the parties in writing at least forty-five (45) days before the hearing. Such convocation is served to the parties with the SO and the parties are obliged to respond to the SO twenty (20) days the latest before the hearing. Each party may propose the examination of up to three (3) witnesses. The parties may file their supplemental pleadings ten (10) days at the latest before the hearing. The President or the person who substitutes the President directs the hearing, gives the floor and poses questions to the rapporteur, the parties, etc. Following the end of the hearing, the parties may, upon the permission of the President, submit supplementary pleadings. Finally, the HCC should take its decisions within twelve (12) months from the assignment of the case to the rapporteur. In exceptional circumstances, the HCC may extend such deadline by up to two (2) months.

1.4 What remedies (e.g., fines, damages, injunctions, etc.) are available to enforcers?

Article 25 of the Law stipulates that in case of competition law infringement, the HCC may: (i) issue recommendations; (ii) oblige the interested undertakings to cease the infringement and desist from it in the future; (iii) impose structural or behavioural measures which should be necessary and proportionate for the ceasing of the infringement; (iv) impose a fine; (v) threaten to impose a fine in case of continuation or repetition of the infringement; or (vi) impose the threatened fine in the case that it issues a decision which confirms the continuation or repetition of the infringement. It is highlighted that the HCC is not entitled to award damages to the parties, since it is solely competent for the public enforcement of competition law. With regard to private enforcement of competition law, see question 1.9 below.

1.5 How are those remedies determined and/or calculated?

The Law, in conjunction with the HCC's guidelines on fines, sets the method for the determination of fines. It should be noted that the HCC follows the EU respective guidelines for the calculation of fines. In that context, it is noted that fines cannot exceed 10% of the aggregate turnover of the undertaking for the last fiscal year of the infringement, or for the current fiscal year in the case that the infringement is ongoing until the issuance of the decision.

1.6 Describe the process of negotiating commitments or other forms of voluntary resolution.

By virtue of its decision no. 588/2014, which takes into account the decisional practice of the European Commission ("Commission"), the HCC sets out the conditions and the procedure for the submission of commitments. The HCC has wide discretion to decide whether it shall accept commitments from the concerned undertakings. More specifically, the undertakings may propose commitments with regard to any possible infringement arising from articles 1 and 2 of Law 3959/2011, which mirror articles 101 and 102 TFEU respectively. The HCC considers the commitments procedure as suitable in cases where the concerns as to competition law: (i) may be easily identified; (ii) are fully resolved by the proposed commitments without causing new concerns; and (iii) may be resolved efficiently and quickly by such commitments. On the other hand, the HCC does not accept commitments in the following cases: (i) hardcore restrictions; (ii) serious cases of abuse of dominance; and (iii) anti-competitive horizontal agreements which have benefitted from the leniency programme.

In addition, the HCC has adopted a revised leniency programme by its decision no. 526/VI/2011, which is solely applicable to cartels and covers both individuals and undertakings. The HCC may grant immunity, either full or partial, should the following prerequisites be met: (i) the applicant cooperates fully and continuously with the HCC; (ii) it remains at the HCC's disposal to answer promptly at any request which may contribute to the establishment of the facts; (iii) it does not destroy, falsify or conceal relevant information or evidence relating to the alleged cartel; (iv) it does not disclose to any third party the fact or content of its application before a recommendation on the case is issued and notified to the parties, unless otherwise agreed with the HCC; (v) its involvement in the cartel has ended at the latest when the application was filed; and (vi) the applicant has treated its application as fully confidential until the issue of an SO by the HCC. As noted above, the HCC may grant either full immunity (Type 1A or type 1B) or, if the conditions for granting full immunity are not met, partial immunity (i.e. reduction of fine). With regard to natural persons, the grant of full immunity absolves them from criminal liability, whereas the grant of a reduction of fine is considered as a mitigating factor.

Finally, by its unanimous decision no. 628/2016, issued on the basis of article 25A of the Law, the HCC introduced the terms and conditions for the settlement procedure, which is applicable only to cartel cases. Such procedure aims to simplify and accelerate the administrative procedure with regard to the issuance of decisions by the HCC, as well as to reduce the number of appeals against the HCC's decisions. In addition, a reduction of the imposed fine by 15% may be obtained, whilst persons who successfully conclude a settlement procedure are absolved of criminal liability in relation to offences committed with the same actions.

This procedure presupposes that the undertaking makes a clear and unequivocal acknowledgment of its participation in a horizontal anti-competitive agreement and accepts its liability with regard to the infringement of article 1(1) of the Law and/or 101(1) TFEU. In addition, the undertaking waives its right, under certain circumstances, to have full access to the administrative file and to have an oral hearing before the HCC. The settlement procedure requires the undertaking's initiative, given that the undertaking should express its interest for the initiation of this procedure. The HCC and the undertaking organise bilateral meetings in which part of the evidence included in the HCC's administrative file is disclosed. Afterwards, the undertaking is obliged to submit, within a specified deadline, a proposal for settlement which includes certain statements (e.g. unequivocal acknowledgment of its participation in the cartel, acceptance of the maximum amount of fine which may be imposed, etc.). If such proposal reflects the conclusions drawn in the bilateral sessions, the rapporteur drafts an SO and suggests its acceptance by the HCC. Finally, the HCC issues its final decision following a simplified procedure.

1.7 Does the enforcer have to defend its claims in front of a legal tribunal or in other judicial proceedings? If so, what is the legal standard that applies to justify an enforcement action?

No such defence is required.

1.8 What is the appeals process?

Article 30 of the Law provides that the HCC's decisions are subject to appeal before the Athens Administrative Court within sixty (60) days from their notification. The Athens Administrative Court examines such decisions for errors in law and fact. Following the decision by the Athens Administrative Court, a further appeal is possible, under certain conditions, before the Council of State, which is competent to review such decision only on points of law.

1.9 Are private rights of action available and, if so, how do they differ from government enforcement actions?

Yes. Any person (natural or legal), irrespective of whether he is a direct or indirect customer of the infringer and has suffered harm due to an infringement of Greek and/or EU competition law, is entitled to full compensation. Greek civil courts, namely the Magistrate's Courts or the Courts of First Instance, are competent, depending on the value of the claim, to hear private disputes due to infringements of competition law. In addition, Law 4529/2018, which implemented into Greek law Directive 2014/104/EU, provides for substantive and procedural rules which aim to facilitate the effective exercise of the rights of the injured parties to claim damages for antitrust infringements.

1.10 Describe any immunities, exemptions, or safe harbours that apply.

The HCC has adopted a De Minimis Notice on agreements of minor importance which do not appreciably restrict competition under article 1(1) of Law 703/77 (i.e. the former competition act). Such notice is modelled on the respective EU De Minimis Notice and specifies certain market thresholds which quantify whether there is an appreciable restriction of competition under article 1(1) of the Law. More specifically, a vertical agreement between undertakings does not appreciably restrict competition within the meaning of article 1(1) of the Law if the market share held by each of the parties to the agreement does not exceed ten (10) per cent of any of the relevant markets affected by the agreement. It should be underlined that the De Minimis Notice is not applicable to vertical agreements which contain hardcore restrictions.

Furthermore, with regard to vertical agreements, the Commission's Regulation 330/2010 ("Block Exemption Regulation") and the Commission's Guidelines on Vertical Restraints ("Vertical Guidelines") apply in the Greek legal order. In that context, a vertical agreement between a supplier and a distributor benefits from the Block Exemption Regulation, in the sense that a safe harbour is created, provided that: (a) market shares of the parties do not exceed 30% in the relevant product market; and (b) the agreement does not contain any hardcore restriction. In the case that the market share of at least one of the contracting parties exceeds 30%, the effects of the practice are assessed in accordance with the analytical framework provided in the Vertical Guidelines.

1.11 Does enforcement vary between industries or businesses?

No. The HCC does not treat industries differently.

1.12 How do enforcers and courts take into consideration an industry's regulatory context when assessing competition concerns?

The HCC and the courts assess an industry's regulatory context by examination of the practices within that industry.

1.13 Describe how your jurisdiction's political environment may or may not affect antitrust enforcement.

The HCC is an independent administrative authority.

1.14 What are the current enforcement trends and priorities in your jurisdiction?

The HCC's primary objective is to promote the competitive process. In that context, there are not any specific enforcement trends and priorities. Nevertheless, the latest decisions issued by the HCC show an emphasis on scrutinising practices in the fast-moving consumer goods ("FMCG") sector.

1.15 Describe any notable case law developments in the past year.

The HCC has examined "classic" competition law practices (e.g. resale price maintenance, non-compete obligations) in line with the Commission's decisional practice. In that context, there are not any notable case law developments.

2 Vertical Agreements

2.1 At a high level, what is the level of concern over, and scrutiny given to, vertical agreements?

According to the HCC's decisional practice, vertical agreements are considered less restrictive in comparison to horizontal agreements. Namely, the HCC has underlined that vertical agreements may produce pro-competitive effects. Nevertheless, it is noted that certain practices, such as resale price maintenance and prohibition of passive sales, are considered as hardcore restrictions.

2.2 What is the analysis to determine (a) whether there is an agreement, and (b) whether that agreement is vertical?

The HCC follows the same analysis with the Commission's decisional practice. In that context, the HCC examines the common will of the parties, irrespective of its form (e.g. written, oral). Namely, it is sufficient that the parties have expressed their joint intention to conduct themselves on the market in a specific way. Moreover, an agreement is considered as vertical if it is concluded between undertakings which are active in different changes of supply and distribution.

2.3 What are the laws governing vertical agreements?

Article 1(1) of the Law, which mirrors article 101(1) TFEU, is the core provision which governs vertical agreements. Namely, article 1(1) of the Law stipulates: "all agreements between undertakings, all decisions by associations of undertakings, and concerted practices which have as their object or effect the prevention, restriction, or distortion of competition in the Greek territory are prohibited and, in particular, those which: (i) directly or indirectly fix purchase or selling prices or any other trading conditions; (ii) limit or control production, markets, technical development, or investment; (iii) share markets or sources of supply; (iv) apply dissimilar conditions to equivalent transactions with other trading parties, thereby placing them at a competitive disadvantage, in particular by refusing without valid justification, to sell, purchase, or conclude any other transaction; (v) or make the conclusion of contracts subject to acceptance by other parties of additional obligations which, by their nature or according to commercial usage, have no connection with the object of such contracts". Furthermore, article 101(1) TFEU is applicable to the extent the vertical agreement restricts competition within the internal market or part of it and affects trade between Member States.

2.4 Are there any types of vertical agreements or restraints that are absolutely ("per se") protected?

See question 1.10.

2.5 What is the analytical framework for assessing vertical agreements?

First of all, the HCC examines whether the practice under examination qualifies as an agreement, a decision by an association of undertakings, or concerted practice. Subsequently, the HCC reviews whether such agreement/decision/concerted practice restricts competition by object or effect. In that context, the HCC examines whether the agreement/decision/concerted practice may benefit either from its De Minimis Notice or the Block Exemption Regulation; in the case that it is not exempted, it scrutinises them in accordance with the Vertical Guidelines.

2.6 What is the analytical framework for defining a market in vertical agreement cases?

The HCC follows the Commission's practice with regard to the definition of a market in a vertical agreement case. In particular, the HCC's market definition is based on the Commission's notice on the definition of relevant market for the purposes of EU competition law (97/C 372/03).

2.7 How are vertical agreements analysed when one of the parties is vertically integrated into the same level as the other party (so-called "dual distribution")? Are these treated as vertical or horizontal agreements?

Such agreement is assessed in the context of both the analytical framework for horizontal and vertical agreement. More specifically, the Vertical Guidelines stipulate that "vertical agreements between competitors are dealt with, as regards possible collusion effects, in the Guidelines on the applicability of Article 101 to horizontal cooperation agreements. However, the vertical aspects of such agreements need to be assessed under Vertical Guidelines".

2.8 What is the role of market share in reviewing a vertical agreement?

See question 1.10 above. It is underlined that market shares are not taken into consideration in case of vertical agreements which include hardcore restraints.

2.9 What is the role of economic analysis in assessing vertical agreements?

Economic analysis is important in case of definition of the relevant product market and the assessment of efficiencies.

2.10 What is the role of efficiencies in analysing vertical agreements?

Efficiencies are invoked by the parties, in the context of individual exemption under article 1(3) of the Law, which mirrors article 101(3) TFEU, in cases where the HCC assesses that the vertical agreement causes competition law concerns. It is noted that efficiencies are more likely to be accepted where vertical agreements are considered to restrict competition by effect rather than by object.

2.11 Are there any special rules for vertical agreements relating to intellectual property and, if so, how does the analysis of such rules differ?

The HCC follows the Commission's decisional practice. In that context, the Vertical Block Exemption Regulation, as well as the Block Exemption concerning the transfer of technology, apply.

2.12 Does the enforcer have to demonstrate anticompetitive effects?

Yes, except in the case that the vertical agreement contains hardcore restrictions.

2.13 Will enforcers or legal tribunals weigh the harm against potential benefits or efficiencies?

Such weighing takes place only in the context of individual exemption. See question 2.10 above.

2.14 What other defences are available to allegations that a vertical agreement is anticompetitive?

Except for the efficiencies which may be invoked in the context of individual exemption (see question 2.10 above), there are not any other defences.

2.15 Have the enforcement authorities issued any formal guidelines regarding vertical agreements?

No such guidelines have been issued.

2.16 How is resale price maintenance treated under the law?

Resale price maintenance is considered as a "by object" restriction of competition.

2.17 How do enforcers and courts examine exclusive dealing claims?

Such practice may benefit from the Block Exemption Regulation should its prerequisites be met. If it does not benefit from such Regulation, the HCC examines it in accordance with the analytical framework provided in the Vertical Guidelines. Exclusive dealing raises competition law concerns in cases where the supplier has a dominant position.

2.18 How do enforcers and courts examine tying/supplementary obligation claims?

The HCC examines such claims as a unilateral practice, in the context of abuse of dominance.

2.19 How do enforcers and courts examine price discrimination claims?

See question 2.18 above.

2.20 How do enforcers and courts examine loyalty discount claims?

See question 2.18 above.

2.21 How do enforcers and courts examine multi-product or “bundled” discount claims?

See question 2.18 above.

2.22 What other types of vertical restraints are prohibited by the applicable laws?

The HCC does not have an exclusive list of vertical restraints considered as anti-competitive. Contrary to the Commission’s recent decisional practice, for the time being the HCC does not focus on the e-commerce sector.

2.23 How are MFNs treated under the law?

MFNs are not per se anti-competitive except in cases where they are used as a means to create or facilitate resale price maintenance.

2.24 Describe any notable case developments concerning vertical merger analysis.

There are not any notable case developments.

3 Dominant Firms

3.1 At a high level, what is the level of concern over, and scrutiny given to, unilateral conduct (e.g., abuse of dominance)?

The HCC has paid great attention to unilateral practices, by issuing notable decisions, especially in the FMCG sector.

3.2 What are the laws governing dominant firms?

Article 2 of Law 3959/2011, which reflects article 102 TFEU, governs dominant firms. Furthermore, the HCC applies mutatis mutandis the Communication from the Commission – Guidance on the Commission’s enforcement priorities in applying article 82 of the EC Treaty to abusive exclusionary conduct by dominant undertakings (“Guidance”).

3.3 What is the analytical framework for defining a market in dominant firm cases?

The HCC applies the Commission’s notice on the definition of the relevant market for the purposes of EU competition law (97/C 372/03).

3.4 What is the market share threshold for enforcers or a court to consider a firm as dominant or a monopolist?

The HCC considers market share as one of the factors in order to assess whether a firm is dominant/monopolist. Namely, according to the HCC, a presumption of dominance exists in cases where a company has a market share which exceeds 50%.

3.5 In general, what are the consequences of being adjudged “dominant” or a “monopolist”? Is dominance or monopoly illegal per se (or subject to regulation), or are there specific types of conduct that are prohibited?

Being dominant or even monopolist is not considered as per se illegal. Article 2 of Law provides for an indicative list of practices which are considered as abusive (see question 3.12 below).

3.6 What is the role of economic analysis in assessing market dominance?

Economic analysis is one of the tools used in assessing market dominance.

3.7 What is the role of market share in assessing market dominance?

Market share is one of the factors taken into account in assessing market dominance. See also question 3.4 above.

3.8 What defences are available to allegations that a firm is abusing its dominance or market power?

The dominant undertaking may provide an objective justification for its defence or may demonstrate that its conduct produces efficiencies which outweigh the negative effect on competition. With regard to efficiencies, it is noted that the HCC takes into account the EU jurisprudence as well as the analytical framework provided under the Guidance.

3.9 What is the role of efficiencies in analysing dominant firm behaviour?

Efficiencies are used as a means of defence in cases where a practice is deemed an abuse of dominance. See question 3.8 above.

3.10 Do the governing laws apply to “collective” dominance?

Yes, they do.

3.11 How do the laws in your jurisdiction apply to dominant purchasers?

Greek law does not treat dominant purchasers differently from dominant suppliers.

3.12 What counts as abuse of dominance or exclusionary or anticompetitive conduct?

Article 2 of the Law includes an indicative list of practices which are deemed exploitative and exclusionary. More specifically, article 2 of the Law prohibits any abuse by one or more undertakings of a dominant position, within the national market or in a part of it. Such abuse may, in particular, consist in: (i) directly or indirectly imposing unfair purchase or selling prices or other unfair trading conditions; (ii) limiting production, markets or technical development to the prejudice of consumers; (iii) applying dissimilar conditions to equivalent transactions with other trading parties, thereby placing them at a competitive disadvantage; and (iv) making the conclusion of contracts subject to acceptance by the other parties of supplementary obligations which, by their nature or according to commercial usage, have no connection with the subject of such contracts.

3.13 What is the role of intellectual property in analysing dominant firm behaviour?

The exercise of an intellectual property right by a dominant firm may, under specific circumstances, constitute an abuse of dominance.

3.14 Do enforcers and/or legal tribunals consider “direct effects” evidence of market power?

The HCC considers whether a practice applied by a dominant undertaking is likely to foreclose the market, whilst it is not necessary to examine actual effects.

3.15 How is “platform dominance” assessed in your jurisdiction?

The HCC has not adopted any specific assessment with regard to platform dominance.

3.16 Under what circumstances are refusals to deal considered anticompetitive?

The HCC follows Commission’s decisional practice with regard to refusal to deal.

4 Miscellaneous

4.1 Please describe and comment on anything unique to your jurisdiction (or not covered above) with regard to vertical agreements and dominant firms.

The HCC’s decisional practice is in line with the Commission’s practice.
